

WLL 201 World Literature 1

Explore the history of storytelling around the world, from mankind's ancient origins to the dawn of modernity.

This course functions as the gateway to the world literature major. It introduces students to the formal study of literature as a discipline by examining literary production across multiple cultural traditions. Focus will be placed on examining texts as artifacts of a specific time and place while contextualizing these works cross-culturally within literary history.

